

HENRY V – THE BIG QUESTION

A SEN PSHE and Citizenship Resource

© Shakespeare Schools Foundation 2019

All rights reserved. Copyright of this curriculum resource rests with Shakespeare Schools Foundation. Any hiring, lending, redistribution, modification or copying (other than copying for the exclusive use of the school or institution which has purchased the resource) is strictly prohibited

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Shakespeare Schools Foundation wish to thank the following trusts and charitable foundations, without whom this resource could not have been created.

This project has been made possible thanks to the generous support of The Childhood Trust, who fund grass roots charities and their projects to alleviate the impact of child poverty.

theBigGive.org.uk

We have been kindly supported by The Big Give, who profile the work of thousands of charities and their projects, providing a platform to promote causes and inspire people to give. We are very grateful to everyone who supported our work through The Big Give.

How to use this lesson plan

This SEN scheme provides you with lessons to teach pupils about forming and talking about their opinions, whilst deepening their understanding of the key themes of the play and the characters that inhabit the world.

It uses Shakespeare's Henry V to discuss why it is important to stand up for what you believe in, whilst also developing:

- Oracy, collaboration, social and communication skills
- Independent thinking, speech and language skills
- Knowledge in personal, social, health education
- Creativity and imagination through drama work

This pack consists of:

- Individual single page lesson plans: the essential overview of each lesson and the basis of your teaching.
- Teaching and learning activities to accompany each lesson plan: further details of lesson activities.
- Resources to accompany each lesson plan,
- Two editable assessment grids, with two different uses:
 1. To assess the class against each stage of the lesson.
 2. To assess each student against the relevant national curriculum link and the lesson objective, with space for assessment evidence and for the student to reflect and self assess, if appropriate.
- Orange font A resource needed from the scheme's resource pack, where you will find all resources arranged in lesson plan order.
- Jade font A hyperlink, either to an area of our website or to an external link.¹

This resource is designed to support the rehearsal process for your Festival performance. You may want to use the whole resource, taking it slowly and stretching it out over the course of many weeks before starting rehearsals or you might want to use it more like a pick and mix resource, selecting the exercises and activities that will be right for you and your young people and using them in rehearsals. You are the expert in your field so do adapt these exercises to suit

¹ External links are selected and reviewed on their individual educational merits at the time our schemes are published, but we are not responsible for their content as we do not produce, maintain or update them, and have no authority to change them. Some external links may offer commercial products and/or services. The inclusion of a hyperlink should not be understood to be an endorsement by Shakespeare Schools Foundation of that website, the site's owners or their products and services.

the needs of your students. With that in mind, we have considered and flagged opportunities for extending, scaffolding and assessing your young people in this resource.

These symbols have the following meanings:

Dig Deeper! Suggestions for further activities beyond the scope of the lesson.

Ideas that may need to be adapted for your learners or areas of extra teacher preparation prior to the lesson (e.g. internet sites to be accessed before the lesson).

Opportunities to document assessment through film or photography. There are points for the students to reflect on what they have learnt. These would also be useful opportunities to ask them to communicate how they felt when they did a particular exercise, with reference to their self-esteem, self-worth, confidence.

How to use this scheme of work: additional notes relating to the diverse nature of SEN

When developing our SEN resources, we ask for advice from our expert teacher network. Here, Jude Ragan, an expert in Autistic Spectrum Disorder and former headteacher at Queensmill School in London, gives her tips on the best ways to approach an SSF scheme of work.

‘At a time when schools are under such financial pressure and are simultaneously being asked to provide more and more, it is worth remembering the core values of teaching, and what, as a profession, we hold dear and do extraordinarily well. In many years of working with teaching staff in both mainstream and special schools, as a teacher, headteacher and for a short while inspector, I saw how teachers feel the imperative to meet the needs of each child in their class, no matter what their starting points, and to do it in an inspirational and motivating way. I have always found it inspiring when teachers know the impediments faced by many of our pupils with special needs and yet set have high and challenging expectations for them, never underestimating their potential.

Many years ago, at Queensmill School, when we first adopted PECS (Picture Exchange Communication System - a wonderful way to demonstrate to autistic children the need to speak and giving them a voice to do so) we thought long and hard about what to call the extruder we use for clay and plasticine work. We couldn't think of anything meaningful that was simpler, so went with the word extruder. Some time later, it was joyous to hear one of the pupils, a small autistic child whose language was just emerging, to look long and hard at it, to arrange his PECS symbols on the sentence strip, and then to say, loud and clear: "I want extruder". Cue cheering. It was the proper label, and of course if children wanted the tool, they used the label.

I love the work of SSF, whom I have observed first hand many times getting something magical from students with all sorts of special needs. I love the language of Shakespeare, and love the fact that, like "extruder", children have a motivating activity in which to hear and to fit such language.

Whether choosing to use the language of the Key Points as is or explaining more, SSF have done some of the necessary spadework. These lesson plans, activities, resources and assessments are brilliantly designed. They leave the teacher to impose upon them the needs of their particular teaching group and the needs of the individuals in it. They offer many links into the National Curriculum, and my bet is that many teachers will find even more meaningful links into various other NC subjects, depending on the routes down which their pupils lead them.

My advice would be simply to print these off, have ready the resources, have ready the hyperlinks on your IWB, and have huge fun with your pupils. With the help of these invaluable resources, let them experience the glory of a Shakespeare play, taking it into their own very individual sphere of influence. Let them have the comfort of repeating and rehearsing and improving and performing, and where possible of course, let their parents have that very special experience of seeing their children as confident, competent, creative learners.’

Jude Ragan

Curriculum Links

This lesson sequence gives young learners opportunities to meet aspects of the Citizenship curriculum for KS2:

- take part in collaborative activities to enhance social and communication issues
- prepare to play an active role as citizens by researching, discussing and debating issues
- reflect on responsibilities, rights and duties
- develop self-knowledge, self-esteem and self-confidence
- accept responsibility for their behaviour, show initiative, and to understand how they can contribute positively to the lives of those living and working in the locality of the school and to society more widely

Examples of actions schools can take to promote Fundamental British values, include:

- ensuring all pupils within the school have a voice that is listened to, and demonstrate how democracy works by actively promoting democratic processes such as a school council whose members are voted for by the pupils

There are also elements that meet requirements for Speaking and Listening P Scales.

Speaking:

P7: They contribute appropriately one-to-one and in small group discussions and role-play.

P8: They take part in role-play with confidence.

Listening:

P6: Pupils respond to others in group situations [for example, taking turns appropriately in a game such as 'Pass the parcel'].

P7: Pupils listen, attend to and follow stories for short stretches of time.

They attend to, and respond to, questions from adults and their peers about experiences, events and stories [for example, 'Where has the boy gone?'].

P8: Pupils take part in role-play with confidence.

Pupils listen attentively. They respond appropriately to questions about why or how [for example 'Why does a bird make a nest?', 'How do we copy this picture?'].

The Personal Wellbeing Programme of Study Key Stage 3 – non statutory. The range and content includes:

- examples of diverse values encountered in society and the clarification of personal values
- ways of recognising and reducing risk, minimising harm and getting help in emergency and risky situations
- the features of positive and stable relationships, how to deal with a breakdown in a relationship and the effects of loss and bereavement
- different types of relationships, including those within families and between older and young people, boys and girls, and people of the same sex, including civil partnerships
- the similarities, differences and diversity among people of different race, culture, ability, disability, gender, age and sexual orientation and the impact of prejudice, bullying, discrimination and racism on individuals and communities.

This lesson sequence also provides opportunities to meet some of the statutory requirements of the KS2 National Curriculum for English. Whereby Pupils should be taught to:

- listen and respond appropriately to adults and their peers
- ask relevant questions to extend their understanding and knowledge
- articulate and justify answers, arguments and opinions
- give well-structured descriptions, explanations and narratives for different purposes, including for expressing feelings
- maintain attention and participate actively in collaborative conversations, staying on topic and initiating and responding to comments
- use spoken language to develop understanding through speculating, hypothesising, imagining and exploring ideas
- speak audibly and fluently with an increasing command of Standard English
- participate in discussions, presentations, performances, role play, improvisations and debates
- gain, maintain and monitor the interest of the listener(s)
- consider and evaluate different viewpoints, attending to and building on the contributions of others
- increase their familiarity with a wide range of books including fiction from our literary heritage
- drawing inferences such as inferring characters' feelings, thoughts and motives from their actions, and justifying inferences with evidence
- provide reasoned justifications for their view

The Big Question – Henry V

Learning Objectives To participate and collaborate in shared activities. To share my opinion on the Big Question. To identify the reasons for standing up for what I believe.	Big Question: Why is it important to stand up for what I believe in? Vocabulary: believe, stand up, principles, values, role play, scenarios, morals, relationship, assume, punish, Henry, Bardolph, committed, responsibilities You might want to familiarise yourself with the play first. Using the 10 point summary, try mixing up the story points and asking your students to arrange them back into the correct order. You could then create freeze frames of these moments, which will help your students to get an overview of the story before you look into the Big Question.	Assessment Opportunities <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Class discussion about the starting image • Value Spots • Character actions and interactions • Role Play Scenarios • Follow up written work
 Dig Deeper! Suggested Further Activities for lesson follow up. Pupils create freeze frames to show moments in the play. The teacher acts in role as a ‘roving reporter’ to find out more from these characters. Pupils might suggest other times people need to stand up for what they believe in and create a poster, some drama or piece of writing about it. Pupils write to Henry V or Bardolph about their principles and how they stand up for what they believe in.	Lesson overview <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Exploring principles – Using a starting image, prompt a class discussion to lead into the Big Question. • Ask the students to consider their response to the Big Question by placing themselves on Value Spots. • Share the facts with the class and then play the Triptico game to work out true or false. • Students use these facts to come up with character actions. They then move around the space interacting with each other using gestures and sounds (and text if appropriate). • Students role-play some scenarios about ‘Speaking out’. They then use some commands to explore these moments and what happens next. • Students return to the Big Question and the Value spots once more. • Students fill in the missing words to describe Henry V and Bardolph. See Teaching and Learning Activities for full details	Resources <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • 10 point summary • Starting Image • Speech and thought bubbles • Facts about Henry V and Bardolph • Triptico Game – True or False • Henry V and Bardolph quotes • Role Play Scenarios and commands • Fill in the gaps • Assessment grid for the class • Assessment grid per student Teachers Notes

Teaching and Learning Activities

Starter – Exploring principles

- Show your students the Starting Image and ask them to play ‘I See.’
 - What do they see in the image? Begin with the literal things and then start to ask the students to use detective hats to think about what might be going on.
- Ask them to use the facial expressions and body language of the people in the image to think about what is happening.
- Provide the students with thought bubbles so that they can write or say what the people are thinking.
- Provide the students with speech bubbles so that they can write or say what they people are saying.
- How do they think this situation might be resolved?
 - These speech and thought bubbles could be used in classroom displays or to add to working walls – if appropriate for the students.

Starter - Value Spots

- Ask the class questions that will elicit different answers, such as ‘What is your favourite colour?’ or ‘What do you do most in your spare time?’
- Note answers and decide on between three and five options.
- Use a coloured spot/part of the classroom/ suitable prop (a Value Spot) to represent this option in the classroom. Ensure it is location based.
- Introduce the Value Spots by showing them where they might stand if they agree strongly with one of the options – close by.
- Also demonstrate that they might stand in the middle of two places if they agree with more than one option.
- Ask the question again and ask them to move to their chosen option. Ask for the reasoning behind their choice.
- Now ask the ‘Big Question: ‘Why is it important to stand up for what I believe in?’
- Take suggestions for answers. Try to make sure that there are a few options that aren’t obvious/not necessarily the ‘correct’ response, as it is good to have a range to stimulate a discussion. E.g Because it matters what I think; because people will like me more; it helps to make others see different points of view etc.
 - If you are concerned that the students might not be able to think of reasons on the spot, you could provide some already written up on A3 paper.
- Allocate each idea to a coloured spot/part of the classroom/suitable prop and ask the students to move to their chosen response and to share their reasons for their choice.
- Take photographs of where the students have placed themselves to compare with later.
 - Students could use these photographs to explain in writing or through alternative communication methods why they decided to stand where they did. These could then be displayed in the classroom if appropriate for the students.

Teaching and Learning Activity One - Exploring characters from Henry V

- Capture students' work through film or photography for assessment purposes.
- It might help to draw a simple set of diagrams showing that Henry V started as Prince Hal who had lots of friends, including Bardolph and now he is King. He cannot spend as much time with his friends as he doesn't really have time, they aren't a very good influence on him and spend most of their time getting him into trouble.
- Share the Facts about Henry V and Bardolph with the class. You might decide to share them directly or hand them out to each group to do so. These facts contextualise the relationship between these two characters up until Henry V finds out that Bardolph has robbed a church and he is thinking about what to do about his friend's criminal behaviour, at around 2/3 of the way through the play.
- Ask the class any of the following questions or think of some others to suit the needs and abilities of your class:
 - What do we know about the two of them?
 - What might we be able to assume from what we know?
 - How does the relationship change or develop over the course of time?
 - What is good/bad about the relationship?
 - How might they describe it in one word?
 - How do they think the story will end for these two characters?
- Ask pupils for their reaction to the behaviour of Henry V and Bardolph so far.
- Hide the facts or any information that you have recorded from the questions, so that you can now challenge your students to 'True or False' using the Triptico Game
- This will consolidate your students understanding of these two characters and ask them to use memory skills to determine if the facts are applicable to one, both or neither character.

Load the game on the interactive whiteboard by clicking on the link below or the screenshot to the left and following the instructions

Instructions

- Load the Triptico cards by clicking HERE
- You can choose to do this against the clock or in a non time pressured way
- Move the cards to the right (green side) if you think that the fact is true
- Move the cards to the left (red side) if you think that the fact is false
- You will hear sound effects to confirm whether you have got it correct or not!

Teaching and Learning Activity Two – Character actions

- Capture students' work through film or photography for assessment purposes.
- Using all of the information gathered about these two characters, ask the students to come up with an action/sign name or a gesture to demonstrate the type of person they are.
- You could challenge your students to come up with a sound to accompany the action or you could give them one of the quotes to use instead of or as well as.
- Invite your class into a circle and ask them to do their action when you say the character name.
- Ask them to look out for things that they really like about other people's actions. Hear some of these.
- Now ask two pupils to move into the circle as Henry V and Bardolph and get them to interact with one another.
 - Move past one another, around each other in circles, give them a prop/costume/chair and see how they use it.

- Ask them to use the sounds/quote and use these to communicate with one another too. How can they change the way they say the line/deliver the sound?
- Now give them the scenario 'Bardolph has committed a crime, King Henry must punish him'. Using only their actions and sounds, how do they interact now? Experiment with a few other scenarios from earlier in the play and set them off in pairs to try them out.
- Spotlight a few to show and discuss what they liked as a class.
- Ask if Henry V and Bardolph have stood up for what they believe in. Do we know? What have they done/not done to show this?

Teaching and Learning Activity Three – Role Play

- Capture students' work through film or photography for assessment purposes.
- Divide your class into smaller groups of twos and threes and provide them with one of the Role Play scenarios.
- Ask them to imagine that they are the people in this scenario and through acting it out, they need to show the rest of the class the scenario that is on their card. They shouldn't go any further than that at this stage.
- Ask the groups to practise that and then to move onto what they think could happen next. What should the person do next?
- Ask the groups to show the rest of the class what they have done so far. Remind the class of the Big Question and ask them to think about that when they are watching the scene.
- Warn them that you might give them a command whilst they are doing their scene. You can use the command cards for this. You might tell them to Freeze, Rewind, Fast Forward or ask What If? Reassure them that this doesn't mean they have done anything wrong, just that you want to find out more about this moment.
- As they show the scene, freeze them to find out more about how each character is feeling, what they want and what they might say next.
- When they reach the point where they show what happens next, ask them to rewind and give them an alternative option E.g What if Ben doesn't own up to his mistake to the teacher and just carries on playing? (How might that change what happens later on? Might his friend and him fall out, argue, fight? How will the teacher react to Ben then?)
- Ask them to rewind and replay the scene but with a different ending. What if Ben admitted his mistake from the beginning? You could also fast-forward to the end of the school day.
- See another group and prompt the rest of the class to use the commands too so that they begin to take control of the role-plays.
- After you have seen a few, or all of them if you have time, discuss what they have learnt about principles?

Plenary

Return to the Value Spots

- Capture students' work through film or photography for assessment purposes.
- Remind the students of everything they have done in these two lessons to help them answer the Big Question again. (You could do this by showing the Starting image and their thought and speech bubbles from their exploration of principles, reminding them of their gestures/sounds work on Henry V and Bardolph and the role-playing discussions.)
- Ask the Big Question again. Ensure that the options are positioned where they were before, or associated with the coloured spots or props as before and ask the students to move according to their opinion now.
- Take a photo to compare their places or show the photo from before to see the change in the two positions.
- Discuss why they have moved/not moved and how they might use what they have learnt about standing up for beliefs.
 - These photographs can be compared with the images previously taken of the value spots. These could then be displayed in the classroom if appropriate for the students.

Fill in the gaps

- Ask the students to fill in the missing words:
 - Henry V is a _____ King.
 - Bardolph is a _____ friend.
- If necessary, provide them with a word mat or resources to find exciting and interesting words to use.
- You could put these on display and use them in your rehearsal rooms when preparing for your performance of the play.
 - Add these completed sentences to the classroom display, if appropriate for students.

Appendix 1

HENRY V

THE BIG QUESTION

Resources Pack

© Shakespeare Schools Foundation 2019

All rights reserved. Copyright of this curriculum resource rests with Shakespeare Schools Foundation. Any hiring, lending, redistribution, modification or copying (other than copying for the exclusive use of the school or institution which has purchased the resource) is strictly prohibited

HENRY V

10 Events

1. King Henry of England makes a legitimate claim to some disputed lands in France and is mocked by the French Herald on behalf of the Dauphin of France.
2. Henry sends Exeter to the King of France with an ultimatum. When his terms are not satisfied he declares war on France.
3. The French are so confident of winning that they do not send help to the town of Harfleur, which Henry easily captures.
4. Henry had instructed his troops not to loot Harfleur and the only English soldier lost is Bardolph who is hanged for stealing from a church.
5. The French lords arrogantly mock the English and feel sure their own army will easily beat the tired, sick and much smaller English force.
6. At night, King Henry walks among his soldiers as an equal and the next morning fills them with the courage to fight.
7. During the battle some cowardly Frenchmen raid the English camp and kill the young boys.
8. The battle is long, bloody and won by Henry.
9. Henry returns to England to greet the crowds and then back to France to agree the peace terms.
10. Terms are agreed which include Henry being given Princess Katherine for a wife.

Starting Image

“A heated argument” by Jamelle Bouie is licensed under CC BY 2.0.

Speech Bubble

Thought Bubble

Facts about Henry and Bardolph:

Henry	Bardolph
He has been crowned King of England, and is very committed to his responsibilities.	He is a thief from London, but he doesn't really have a home.
He used to be known for his irresponsible behaviour and his friendships with people who were considered bad influences	He joined the army but gets into trouble when he steals from a church in the town.
He spent time in pubs getting drunk and stealing from others.	He spent time in pubs getting drunk and stealing from others.
He tells soldiers not to steal from the towns that they capture.	He is sentenced to death for stealing.

Quotes:

Henry V:

'Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more,'

'Cry "God for Harry, England, and Saint George!"

Bardolph:

'I will bestow a breakfast to make you friends;'

'We'll be all three sworn brothers to France:'

Scenario Cards

Lisa really doesn't like peanut butter but her dad puts it in her sandwiches everyday. She is worried about upsetting him so hasn't told him she doesn't like it.

What should Lisa do next?

Liam sees some people in the town centre saying horrible things to a homeless person. They are really upsetting this person.

What should Liam do next?

Some older girls in the school are bullying Sarah's best friend. She has seen them doing it and her friend is really upset.

What should Sarah do next?

Ibrahim is old enough to vote but has not registered to do it. He really agrees with lots of things one of the candidates are saying they will do.

What should Ibrahim do next?

Adele is really unhappy that her local council are going to cut down some trees in the park because they are building a car park.

What should Adele do next?

Ben thinks that the play equipment at school is getting old and tatty and would like some new things.

What should Ben do next?

Commands

Freeze

Commands

Rewind

Commands

Fast

Forward

Commands

What If?

Fill in the gaps

Bardolph is a _____ friend.

Henry V is a _____ King.